

Meghan Anne Reeson

She was born and raised in Regina, Saskatchewan until moving to Toronto in 2014 to take International Development Studies at York University. In Fall 2016 she will begin at the University of Ottawa Faculty of Law with an interest in International and Human Rights law. Her hobbies includes running, being outdoors, cooking and spending time with friends and family. Meghan joined to the Canadian Human Rights International Organization in 2015 as International Researcher and Advocate Human Rights & Refugee Protection Programs. She received recognitions of Ontario Provincial Parliament.

In fact, Ms. Reeson has focused her professional work in the social area and community development. Into the context of her job she has helped numerous families. At present, Ms. Reeson represents a valuable strategic resource, identifying her so much as appropriate counselor and as a key and visionary executive for the future operations of CHRIO.